"Compelling...as graceful and agile on stage as she is on the

- Los Angeles Times

In this personal work, award-winning performance artist/writer Denise Uyehara draws shimmering blue and green maps over her body as she evokes what marks us in our migration towards more borderless identities: blue numbers on a Jewish woman's arm; a Chicana biker neighbor; queerness; love and violence between Asian women and men; a grandmother's fiery suicide. In this moving and provocative performance, Uyehara reveals to us the marks on her body as memories, and through them, she shows us our life destinations. Visuals by Lee a.
